

RUSSIANS PUSH FORCES IN FLANKING MOVEMENT, INVADING EAST PRUSSIA

SOUTHERN END OF EASTERN BATTLE LINE OFFERS LARGEST IMPORTANT DEVELOPMENTS.

FIGHT IN CARPATHIANS

Austrians Make Extravagant Claims of Successes in Battle in Mountain Snows—Threaten Russian Communications.

Sweeping claims of military successes along virtually the entire eastern front except in the extreme north side in an official report today came from the Austrian war office. It is asserted that in Poland on the Warsaw front, in Galicia, Bukowina and northern Hungary, the Austro-German allies are battering down the Russian resistance. The rearward communications of the Russians in Galicia are threatened, the report says, by the Austrians, while the Russian forces which invaded Bukowina and northern Hungary have been unsuccessful, and in Poland the trenches of the Austro-German armies are approaching the Warsaw front.

No mention is made of East Prussia which, according to Petrograd reports, is now menaced by a new offensive movement on the part of the Russian army of invasion. Reports from the Russian war office recently have indicated that the Austrians have gained some advantage in the fighting in the Carpathians, but neither the Petrograd nor Berlin statement has shown any important changes on the Warsaw front.

Dispatches from London and Paris state that the Russians have inflicted a defeat on the Turkish army which invaded Persia, and have reoccupied Tabriz. An official communication from the commander of the Russian army of the Caucasus says that the Turks were defeated and sent to flight in an engagement near Tabriz, but makes no mention of the re-occupation of that city by the Russians.

Berlin advised of a raid on Ostend and Zeebruges in Belgium by British aeroplanes. It is said by Berlin that three of these aeroplanes failed to return, having been surrounded by German aircraft and driven out to sea.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.

London, Jan. 30.—Two conditions call particularly for comment today by British observers of the war:

The Austro-German concentration in the Caucasus, which is regarded as a menace to the Russian armies in Bukowina, and the Russian activities in East Prussia, which have been characterized as a threat to the German forces in this territory. Thus at the extreme end of the immense eastern front, military operations of the greatest importance are now developing.

Russia's new invasion of East Prussia is becoming well defined in British eyes, as an outflanking movement. For some time past this frontier district has been in Russian hands without attracting much attention, but now the troops have begun a series of eight western advances along the fifty miles front from Tilsit southward almost as far as Angerburg. This front is only about 50 miles to the east of the Prussian fortress of Koenigsberg.

Battle in Mountain Snows.

Many miles to the south the combined Austro-German armies and the forces of Russia are battling in the snow in the Carpathian mountain passes, but as is usual with mountain fighting the situation is confused and the results maintaining that the tide of battle is running in their favor. It will be hard to form a clear picture of the situation until either the Russians emerge in force on the Hungarian plains or the Ausro-Germans get them back to the mountain passes perhaps causing at the same time a Russian retreat in Bukowina.

One effect of this struggle has been to bring the Austro-German troops so near the Roumanian frontier as to fan the war flame in that country a fact which may have an important bearing on deciding who Roumania will enter the contest.

Austrians Make Claims.

Vienna, via Amsterdam and London, Jan. 30.—An official communication issued by the Austrian general staff says:

"The present phase of the war in Galicia is proceeding favorably for us. The attempts of the Russian Gardeian army to outflank Archduke Joseph Ferdinand's army near Nowy Sandomir and attack Cracow via Tarlow have led to a counter offensive of the Archduke against Turnow which threatens the rearward communications of the Russians in Galicia and the Carpathians."

Still ineffective was the Russian invasion of Hungary and the attempt to invade Transylvania from Vienna in order to isolate General Gardeian's army and outflank our Carpathian forces.

In the north the German trenches are approaching the front of Warsaw and we are also gaining ground in the Carpathians.

In Bukowina the enemy has retreated to Klippland after General Fischer's victory near Kluj-Jihava."

Kaiser in Battle Fire.

Berlin, via London, Jan. 30.—The correspondence agency of this city asserts that it learns from dependable sources that Emperor William stood in a heavy fire during his Soissons visit and that it was only after persistent representations from his entourage that he consented after a long while, to leave the exposed position.

Capture 745 Frenchmen.

Berlin, Jan. 30.—German troops captured 745 French soldiers and 12 machine guns in the western part of the Arzvra forest, yesterday, according to an official announcement made by the German war office today. Of these men, twelve were officers, the statement says.

The Germans captured also ten members of the association.

HOUSE HOLDS FIGHT ON NAVAL PROGRAM; DANIELS' POSITION

Secretary of Navy Certain Same Naval Program Will Be Followed Out Despite War.

(By ASSOCIATED PRESS.) Washington, Jan. 30.—Secretary Daniels declared today, discussing the building program, that he thought this year's construction plan would be carried out without regard to the European war.

"We do not yet know enough about the war to have it influence this year's building program," he said. "We have orders in Europe and are planning to send more so that by next December we can make recommendations to congress based on results of the big conflict, but for the present battleships, submarines and destroyers are the bread and butter of the navy."

Start Flight in House.

The real fight over the naval building program began with the reading of the naval appropriation bill at the outset of today's session of the General debate had closed and the house met early to expedite the measure without any agreement for a final vote.

The first vote eliminated the provisions to create a chief of naval operations with a staff of 15 officers on a point of order by Republican Leader Mann.

As the democratic caucus substitute for the original bill was squarely before the senate on last night's order of the pending officer to "call the roll" the situation became little outward evidence of the strenuous struggle.

GOOD VAUDEVILLE AT MYERS THEATRE

Three Act Bill Offers Diversified Entertainment Pleasing to Large Audiences.

It was a pleasure to again witness a real good vaudeville bill, such as was given last evening at Myers Theatre. This three act bill is easily the equal of that put on by many of the vaudeville houses on the dollar circuits. Each number on the bill is a headline attraction. Each gets rounds of applause from the audiences.

Opening the bill comes "Carleita," who is billed as "The Human Dragon," who is certainly up to his advance notice. His acrobatic work is without a flaw and he has a large number of new and exceedingly difficult feats that he performs with apparent ease.

Billy Newkirk and the Evans Sisters are well received. Their act is most versatile. They sing, dance and do it well. Their act might be likened to the leading parts of a good musical comedy. Clever specialties are introduced in the way of dancing and in the new society dances.

Fred and Eva Mozart close the bill with highly original novelty act, the equal of which has not been seen in Janesville this season. Their sketch, entitled "Snowed In" is in keeping with the present low temperature. The sketch includes scenes and shows in the first the interior of a log cabin high up in the mountains. Here some good German comedy, close dancing and singing is introduced.

The next scene shows the mountain-side without the cabin door and the scenery is most beautiful. The mountain plane is snow laden while a snow storm adds to the effect. The setting is for the introduction of their dance on the big snow bank, a novel feature, and one that scored rounds of applause.

"The Master Key."

The first two installments of the "Master Key" were shown last night and it is fair to say that this picture is going to be even more popular than "The Trey O' Hearts," because it is more exciting and the theme is just right.

The Chicago Herald. Movies were also shown last evening. They remain very popular with the audiences.

The present vaudeville bill will continue tonight and tomorrow.

CHURCHES

COUNCIL ALLOWS TEN DAY TAX EXTENSION

Commissioners Pass Resolution for Ten Days' More Time to Pay Taxes, Believing Fifteen

Not Necessary.

Instead of a fifteen day extension as announced in last night's issue of the Gazette, the city commission decided that a ten day extension for the payment of taxes would be sufficient, and passed a resolution to that effect at their special meeting Friday. All taxes paid before February tenth will thus be exempt from the two per cent penalty. Members of the commission spent some time arguing the matter and finally came to an agreement at four thirty o'clock.

In view of the fact that over 2,700 people have made tax payments the commissioners did not feel that an extension of fifteen days was necessary, as it would favor only the larger property owners. The ten day extension was further favored as it would allow the city to be able to collect taxes to meet the state obligation, which is due the second Monday in February, the 8th, and amounts to $27,647. This amount can be taken from the city funds and must be collected separately. Mayor Fathers this morning made a suggestion to Speaker Lawrence C. Whitel, assemblyman from this district, that in case the date for the payment of the taxes was extended the state should also extend the date when the cities must turn over the state's share.

Because of the ten day extension very few tax payments were made this morning, the majority wishing to hold over and save interest. The loss of the ten days' interest on the city tax collections, which otherwise would have been completed today, will also amount to no small figure.

SPORTS

CLEAN BASKETBALL PROMISED AT GAME

Strict Enforcement of Rules Urged by Manager of Cardinals Team in Game With Monroe Tonight.

Local basketball is the sport of the day, according to Manager George Calow of the La Crosse Cardinals for their game with the Monroe Cardinals, champions of Green county, at the auditorium tonight. The Cardinal players have obtained plenty of practice during the last week and are ready for the fast visitors who have not met a defeat this year.

With the high school championship team composing the Cardinals and all team members in better condition, the Indians should return the favor in tonight's game by a safe margin over the Belvidere game the five showed exceptional teamwork and good basket shooting during the first half. Belvidere is not yet through giving allies for their trimming here and are seeking a return game with much ardor. Lake Forest last night defeated Beloit college at Beloit 20 to 11 and the Beloit members of the Cardinals team should be on edge for the Monroe game.

The preliminary game between the Maroons and the Beloit college Freshmen should prove a good curtain raiser for the main event, for the Line City rath-raisers have a fair team which have only been defeated by the Belvidere team, in their schedule of games this year.

Considerable interest is taken among the basketball fans of this city in the outcome of the protest made by Ripon college against Thompson, Lawrence college player. It is alleged by the Ripon men that Thompson is a professional through his playing with Company E of Fond du Lac and that he should be barred from college athletics. If the Lawrence player has accepted money for his playing he will be barred but a denial is made of this charge.

Thompson claiming he played with the soldiers to gain experience. The Y.M.C.A. team left at five o'clock in the afternoon to meet the Clinton association team. A hard game is expected by the Janesville men with the heavy Clinton five on their small floor.

JACK COOMBS TO TRY COME-BACK AS HURLER

Brooklyn Owners and Managers Would Like to Know if Former "Iron Man" Could Come Back in 1915.

(By Hal Sheridan.)

New York, Jan. 30.—Can he do it? Can Jack Coombs, famed as an "iron man," wherever baseball is known, succeed where Jim Jeffries and innumerable other sporting celebrities have failed? Can he come back?

That is the question which sport critics and lovers are pondering over. On the man who once mowed down batsmen in world's series battles the same as in exhibition games put over the grand brand of stuff, the same wind-assortment of flickering white flashes that once earned him the sobriquet of "iron man."

Wilbert Robertson and Charley Edwards would like to know. They have got the chance and signed the veterans for 1915, and before many have rolled by they will be able to answer all interrogators as to whether Jack Coombs can come back.

From 1908 until 1912 Coombs' name was perhaps the most feared of any pitcher. Jumping into the big league from the scintillating path of victories at Calypso College, Coombs started the baseball world after he had been in the beginning of a few weeks by pitching and winning twenty-four leading game against the Boston Red Sox. His score was 4 to 1, it is the longest major league game on record.

Coombs' real fame came in 1910 when he shattered several records. His record at the close of that season showed him with thirty-one victories and but nine defeats. Not satisfied with that, he broke another American base record by shutting out his opponents thirteen times and wound up the season in a blaze of glory by thirty-five consecutive scoreless innings.

Coombs continued his path of glory in 1911 in the world's series when he severely injured. In 1912 he returned enough to win 21 of 31 games, since that time has pitched but full games, winning one and losing one.

COON DU LAC WILL GO TO THE COAST

Fond du Lac, Wis., Jan. 30.—With the team with the Twin City Maroons the Coon du Lac basketball team will close the indoor season and on Saturday will begin a tour of the west which will take them to the Pacific coast. The team will spend the winter on the road, playing some forty to fifty games.

The team will spend two weeks in touring northern and western Wisconsin, and then will head into Minnesota, reaching Minneapolis in time for the national tournament, in which they will participate. After the tournament they will go to Billings, Montana, thence to Dallas, Oregon, Seattle, San Francisco, stopping en route at smaller towns. On the return east they will pass through Salt Lake City and Denver, going south into Kentucky and thence working north through Ohio and Illinois.

John H. (Speedy) Rush.

John H. Rush, '98, who has been named head football coach at Princeton, not only failed to play on a Tiger football team, but was in college only his senior year, during which time he ran 100 yards in 9.4 seconds. Since being graduated he has had thirteen years' experience in coaching the teams at Cleveland University School. During that time he has been very successful.

CHAMPION WELSH HAS THREE BATTLES UP TO FEBRUARY 11

MORRIS MILLER

The signing of "Wild Bill" Donovan as manager of the Highlanders adds another to roster of famous champion Brooklyns of 1899 and 1900 who have become big league leaders. Hanlon builded better than he knew when he combined the Orioles and Bridgeports in the winter of '98, for other team since the establishment of baseball has produced so many leaders. A brainier combination never won the pennies, and Hanlon may well be proud of his handiwork. Hanlon frequently remarked up to the time he severed his connection with the Superbas that if the American league had not raided his team he would be winning pennants yet. On the Belvidere game the five showed exceptional teamwork and good basket shooting during the first half. Belvidere is not yet through giving allies for their trimming here and are seeking a return game with much ardor. Lake Forest last night defeated Beloit college at Beloit 20 to 11 and the Beloit members of the Cardinals team should be on edge for the Monroe game.

The preliminary game between the Maroons and the Beloit college Freshmen should prove a good curtain raiser for the main event, for the Line City rath-raisers have a fair team which have only been defeated by the Belvidere team, in their schedule of games this year.

PRESBYTERIANS AND CONGREGATIONALISTS VICTORS

Blair's Team Barely Trim Catholics 24 to 18, While Baptists Lose Hard Game to Champs, 12 to 9.

Referee George Sennett had a busy time all his own last evening at the high school gymnasium, in officiating at the two church league basketball contests that were staged. Not only were the games rough, but they were hard fought and shown by the scores.

The Catholics fought against a heavier team, and were defeated by the Presbyterians, 24 to 18, in a great battle. The other contest was a victory for the champion Congregational fives over the Baptists by a score of 12 to 9.

Followers of the four church teams occupied a good share of the seating capacity of the gymnasium. There is also a good Methodist representation at the games. As a result of the contests, the Congregational and Presbyterian fives are tied for first place with two victories and no defeats.

The lineup and score of both battles is as follows:

Congregational—Craig, l. f.; Lee, r. l.; Brown, c.; Greene, l. g.; Crooks, r. g.

Baptists—Eller, l. f.; Pond, r. f.; Dennis, c.; Badger, l. g.; Drew, r. g.; Leslie and Held, subs.

Field Goals—Craig, 1; Greene, 1; Badger, 2; Eller, 1; Pond, 1. Free Throws—Lee, 1; Pond, 1. Fouls called on Congregational, 8, on Baptists, 15. Denett fouled eight times.

Second Game.

Presbyterians—Jones, l. f.; McVicar, r. f.; McCulloch, c.; Bennett, g.; Lowry, r. g.; Lowry and Lamb, subs.

Catholics—Kennedy and Birmingham, l. f.; Welsh and Kober, r. f.; McCarter, c.; Mooney, l. g.; Viney, r. g.; Dove, sub.

Field Goals—Mooney, 3; McCarter, 1; Viney, 2; Kober, 1; Birmingham, 1; Jones, 2; McVicar, 3; McCulloch, 3; Bennett, 1. Free Throws—McVicar, 6; Welsh, 2. Fouls called on Catholics, 14; on Presbyterians, 9.

The league standing is as follows:

	W.	L.	Per.
Presbyterians	2	1	1,000
Congregational	2	0	1,000
Methodists	1	1	.500
Catholics	0	2	.500

GILLETTE MAY PLAY WITH CHICAGO FEDS

Former Wisconsin Football Star Is Said to Be Some Baseball Hurler—Would Give Up Good Position.

Mexican Joe Rivers has run his pace. The tough southerner was sent to the pugilistic graveyard in Memphis recently by Frankie Callahan. Rivers career has been a checkered stable. He rose to gain a good fortune against the leading lightweights. He was dropped and whipped often by the leaders and often fell the sting of the bell, a wallow in the canvas and near champs, but he still fought the best. He lost his winning confidence and against a young and rising boy like Callahan he met again his master, for youth is not to be denied!

Packey McFarland, champion press agent, now comes out with the state that three expects to win three titles—the lightweight, middleweight and middleweight—something within a year. Packey would not at all be loath to accept the scepters of these three divisions and wants to start on his campaign soon, meeting Welsh, Shugie, Gibbons, Clabby, or any other who disputes his right to "hog" and gain monopoly on the champion ship. The Chicago stockyard id declares he can make 120 pounds for the lightweight and will meet Gibbons or Clabby 145 pounds. Packey certainly is modest in his claims.

Ritchie Mitchell, the Milwaukee featherweight, or former feather, now is to enter the ranks of the lightweight division, something overgrown and middleweight—something within a year. Packey would not at all be loath to accept the scepters of these three divisions and wants to start on his campaign soon, meeting Welsh, Shugie, Gibbons, Clabby, or any other who disputes his right to "hog" and gain monopoly on the champion ship. The Chicago stockyard id declares he can make 120 pounds for the lightweight and will meet Gibbons or Clabby 145 pounds. Packey certainly is modest in his claims.

Guns and Kirkoff no longer hold second place in the doubles at Millett's tournament. Last evening their hopes of getting second prize were blasted when Mead and Nelson stepped into the ring with a total of 1014. But one single match was rolled, McCue getting a total of 415. Monday night Dickerson, Osborn, Cook and O. Pepper will roll in the singles. Last evening's scores:

Mead 182 188 182

Nelson 170 193 169—1014

McCue 128 172 115—415

Lee Magee thinks that Steve Evans is the greatest humorist in the outfit of the Brooklyn Tip Tops, and he put in evidence the following story:

"One evening after the Cardinals had dinner their fifth straight game or so in a row, which had carried them far in the rear of the league race,

Steve Evans stopped a Salvation Army lassie on the street and purchased a copy of the War Cry. He was seen some hours later perusing the publication intently.

"What's the matter?" Have you got religion?" asked a teammate.

"No," replied Evans, "but this is the only paper in town that doesn't print the standing of the clubs."

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

If with pleasure you are viewing any work a man is doing,
If like him or you love him tell him now.

Don't withhold your approbation till the person makes creation
And he lies with snowy hills o'er his brow;

For no matter how you shout if he won't really care about it:

He won't know how many tears drops you have shed:

If you think some praise is due him, now's the time to slip it to him,
For he cannot read his tombstone when he's dead.

More than fame and more than money is the comment kind and sunny And the hearty, warm approval of a friend.

For it gives to life a savor and it makes you stronger, braver.

And it gives you heart and spirit to the end:

If he earns your praise—bestow it; if you like him let him know it;

Let the words of true encouragement be said:

Do not wait till life is over and he's underneath the clover,

For he cannot read his tombstone when he's dead.

—Fine Arts Journal.

No truer sentiment was ever expressed, and if it was more generally adopted this old world would come nearer approaching a paradise. We are all too much inclined to withhold our eulogies and attach them to the tombstone. "To the memory of my dear wife" may look well carved on gray marble, but the same endearing term, applied to the faithful companion, as she trudged by our side, weary with the burdens, and longing for a word of encouragement, might have kept her with us for another decade, and thoughtful recognition would certainly have contributed to her joy and happiness.

The joy of living, when half appreciated, means vastly more than gratifying self, and having a good time regardless. If that is the highest ambition, it represents nothing but the essence of selfishness, and the cup of bitterness. The man who drops in at the saloon with his pay envelope, on Saturday night, may have a good time with the boys. He is a pale fellow well met while his money lasts, but how about the little woman and the little flock at home, dependent on him for the common comforts of life, to say nothing about the sacred obligations of the husband and father.

It is humiliating to think that there are so many homes of this class, where the head of the household has become recreant to his trust, and where about the only real joy that comes to the home is at Christmas time, when some "good fellow," bent on a mission of mercy, feels free to call as a representative of the old Patron Saint, and supply the good cheer which the husband and father neglected.

Life, at its best, means more than living for self. It means sacrificing until sacrifice becomes a pleasure, a condition of heart and mind not easily attained, and yet acquired by many people who find supreme satisfaction by going about doing good.

This is emulating the example of the Master who lived so long ago, and it represents the highest order of Christian service. The people who perform it may or may not subscribe to any creed. It represents the possession of a great principle, vastly more significant than any profession, because it is the lever which works through humanity for human betterment.

The most of us touch elbows with the same people, day after day, and year after year. The atmosphere of a community depends upon the attitude of the individual units, and public sentiment, either good or bad, is the result of united action. It is often said that every municipality is as well governed as the people desire to have it, and this is true.

Prohibition, and all other moral reforms result from united action from within, and not from outside influences. This is just as true of enterprise and development. The moral, as well as the business enterprise of every community reflects the spirit of its citizens, and where the standard of either is low, it is never difficult to trace the cause.

The laws of the land are respected by all law-abiding people, but the laws, more helpful to individual as well as to community life, are found in the larger code of unwritten laws which are never tabulated.

The excuse so often made by people who violate this class of laws, is that there is no law against it. The man who drinks to excess, abuses his wife and neglects his home, may do so with impunity, so far as the written law is concerned, and so may the man who takes advantage of his neighbor in a trade.

Gossip and slander, cheating and lying, are not criminal offenses, yet they are more subtle and more dangerous than many crimes which demand stonement.

The tablet known as the ten commandments, handed down from Sinai, so many years ago, contained the foundation of all law, and a careful reading discloses the fact that it deals very largely with the code of morals, known as the unwritten law, for which the only tribunal is the individual conscience.

The important problem, which is always difficult to solve, is the disposition and ability to put ourselves in the other fellow's place. The lack of being able to do this has led to more trouble and misunderstanding than all other causes combined. This is especially true where capital and labor are concerned.

The Colorado coal strike, which has been so much in evidence, during the past two years, and which has been more disastrous than anything which has happened in the industrial world, since the Haymarket riot, is a case in point. In both cases government troops were necessary to protect life and preserve peace.

All this trouble was due to misunderstanding, as was brought out in the congressional investigation held in New York this week, in which John D. Rockefeller, Jr., was the principal witness. Mr. Rockefeller was a heavy stockholder in one of the Colorado coal companies, though not an officer, and in no way connected with the management.

President Wilson called on him some months ago to aid in settling the strike, but he declined to act, hence the investigation. After he had satisfied the committee that he was in no way responsible, and that his relations with labor had always been the most friendly, he invited the strike-leaders to meet him at his office at 26 Broadway.

The meeting was a revelation to both sides. The men had a chance to come in close contact with the great financier, and they discovered that he was intensely human. Mr. Rockefeller proposes to go to Colorado and meet the men on their own ground, and it is safe to say that there will be no more labor troubles in that district.

This is what arbitration means—giving both parties a chance to go behind the scenes and study situations from every angle. The investigation now going on in Chicago, between the railroads and their employees can only result in good.

No man is so perfect that he is always right, however strong may be his convictions, and as two parties are always necessary to a quarrel, so the mutual understanding of both parties is necessary to permanent peace.

Life is short at the longest, and when we reach the period where the years slip away like the months in the early stages of the journey, the thought is impressed that the best thing worth living for is to make other people happy.

A smile lingers longer than a frown, and is a good deal more potent, and a word of appreciation is often like balm to a weary wayfarer. Let us cultivate the smile, the kindly word and the thoughtful deed, for we shall never pass this way but once, and a pleasant memory is our best bequest to humanity.

ROY K. MOULTON

I remember way back in '84.

The folks was madder' ever before.

When they noticed first the increased expense.

And they have been hollerin' ever since.

They holler till they're sick and sore and lame,

But they keep on payin' just the same.

Although they threaten and wail and shout,

There ain't one thing they will do without.

For every family in this board land is as good as the next one, understand?

They caterwaller and they wipe their eyes,

But they don't seem willing to economize.

When one feller gets some Jimcrack new,

The next feller's got to have one, too,

They all keep diggin' down in their jeans,

And tryin' to live beyond their means.

If this goes on to the end of time,

The cost of livin' is going to climb.

For when you put on new-fangled frills,

You surely have got to pay the bills.

Automobile Yarns.

"I have got a great invention for my car," said the Thin Man.

"Spring it," said the Fat Man.

"I'll stay if the rest do."

"It is simply a new and novel electric lighting plant," said the Thin Man, "and I believe it will revolutionize things. You know, I always wear an electric belt. Well,

I just connect my headlights, side light and tail-lights with this electric belt when I am driving instead of hooking them onto the battery. The scheme works perfectly and in that way a man can operate his lights without any expense and cure him of liver trouble at the same time. That alone can charge all expense to liver trouble instead of car trouble and it takes quite a load off his conscience to know a man has got to have a liver whether he has a car or not."

"I do not doubt your story at all," said the Fat Man, "and I do not question the value of your invention. I know to, for I have heard you do it once or twice, but what I wish to say is that your invention is not one-two-three with one of mine. I have arranged the magnet in my car so that I can turn the car around without expense to myself; I can point the magnet in any direction I see fit and the powerful magnet attracts metallic objects with such accuracy that I always know what to expect. By the simple turning of a lever I can turn the magnet upon anybody. I can tear the star right off from a policeman's coat and he never knows where it goes to. I can turn my magnet upon prosperous looking pedestrians and extract every cent of change that he has got in his pockets. I've done it several times yesterday and when I got home at night and examined the floor under the engine I found that I had collected $41.55. Automobiles under these circumstances is not an expensive pastime and a man can afford to buy a new tire occasionally. I forgot to mention that I pulled a diamond ring off from a man's finger with my magnet yesterday and he never knew it."

AMUSEMENTS

AT MYERS THEATRE.

So much widespread interest has been aroused in this city and the surrounding country by the announcement of the appearance of De Wolf Hopper and the internationally famous Gilbert and Sullivan opera company at Myers' Opera House on Monday and Tuesday, February 8th and 9th, in "The Mikado," "Pirates of Penzance," "Trial By Jury" and "Pinafore"; that special attention will be paid to mail orders, many of which are already beginning to be received. Though it will be manifestly impossible for the management to give every prospective patron the exact time of one or four seats asked for, every effort will be made to fulfill all requests as nearly to the letter as is humanly possible.

The appearance here of Mr. Hopper and his associate artists gives every indication of being one of the most important local theatrical and musical events of several seasons. They come here direct from the Auditorium Theatre, Chicago, where they are at present playing their annual engagement with great success. Two weeks only have been allotted to a tour of a limited few of the smaller cities around Chicago, the first, by the way to be played by Mr. Hopper since the Gilbert and Sullivan Opera company was first organized seasons ago. Then come brief engagements in Philadelphia and Boston preliminary to the annual season at the Casino Theatre, New York.

It is a little late in the day to comment at length upon Mr. Hopper's exceptional talents as a comic opera company. Suffice it to say that competent critics possessed of a proper sense of humor are thoroughly familiar with the Gilbert and Sullivan traditions insist that the comic characters of the master satirist of the nineteenth century have never be-

AT MYERS THEATRE

Lovers of catchy music and good comedy will doubtless note with pleasure that the greatest of all musical comedy favorites, "The Prince of Pilsen," will be the attraction at Myers Theatre, Tuesday evening, February 2nd.

This charming musical entertainment is said to be in full flower of another successful season, with the whole production absolutely new in every detail. Costumes, scenery and effects, and all the many requirements of a high class musical offering have been added to the new company. Theatregoers are already familiar with the tremendous song favorites, "The Message of The Violet," "Heidelberg," "The Tale of The Sea Shells," "Picture in Smoke" and "The Song of The Cities" and their hold upon the American amusement lovers is so great that "Pilsen" continues as one of the greatest successes ever produced.

John W. Ransone, the original of the star role—that of Hans Wagner—the jolly brewer from "Zinzinnati"—and the whole cast is said to be one of superiority and strength. Prominent players in the company are Edna Luke, Regina Richards, Claudia Rodger, Dorothy Delmore, Geraldine De Rose, Marion Mora, G. Burke Scott, Earle MacMullin, George Myers and others of equal importance. New girls comprise a chorus which is said to contain as pretty and vivacious show maids as have ever been sent out of New York. The octet of Heidelberg students in the "Stein Song" is one of the pleasing features of the performance.

AT THE APOLLO.

Clara Kimball Young in "Lola."

Clara Kimball Young is of the aristocracy of the stage land and stands high among the luminaries of minster Abbey. Both he and his sister, Mary Siddons, were famous English actors.

Miss Young's mother, whose maiden name was Pauline Granier, was born in Chicago and came of Canadian-French parentage. She was a descendant of Lord and Lady de Beaufort on her mother's side, her mother being pure Parisian French.

Her playing on the stage was confined to stage work in the main, for Clara Kimball Young did not stay on the stage long, once she found out the joys of working before cameras.

She left "The Skylark" Company to join the Vitagraph forces and while with them she appeared in many successes among which were "The Little Minister," "Love's Sunset," "Poet and Peasant," "Goodness Gracious" and "My Official Wife."

Her greatest film success has been "Lola." Shubert photoplay in five parts which will be presented at the Apollo on Tuesday.

AT THE APOLLO.

May Irwin in "Mrs. Black Is Back."

May Irwin, one of the foremost and most distinguished comedienne of the day, whose list of comedy successes is too long to enumerate, makes her first appearance on the screen at The Apollo on Wednesday.

In her greatest comedy triumph, "Mrs. Black Is Back," from the pen of the famous humorist, George V. Hobart.

This Famous Players—Paramount production is in four parts, and sets a new standard in screen pictures.

As Mrs. Black, May Irwin has amused hundreds of thousands of people throughout the country and in the screen impersonation of that popular character, she attains even greater distinction.

Mrs. Black Is Back" is one of the clearest and most human of comedies yet produced on the screen, and is one of the happiest subjects ever selected by the Famous Players for comedy treatment. Those who have amplified manner and is not hampered by the mechanical limitations of the oral stage.

May Irwin not once throughout the film surrenders her hold on the rapturously of her audience, and her performance is a sparkling, scintillating characterization that leaves one fairly exhausted with laughter.

"MOTHER" COMING BACK.

Another big feature will also be presented on Wednesday by the Apollo. The Wm. A. Brady feature "Mother" which made such an impression here the early part of December, will be shown again. This is a very pretty sentiment which has been beautifully pictured into four acts.

AT THE APOLLO.

"The Country Mouse" on Monday.

The fabol of the country mouse who was so abashed by the ways of the town surrenders her hold on the rapturously of her audience, and her performance is a sparkling, scintillating characterization that leaves one fairly exhausted with laughter.

She does not realize at first the necessity of action but when she does things move swiftly. In the clever hands of Miss Adele Farrington, the role is filled with delightful charm and sympathy.

Mr. Bosworth shows a new side of his versatility in the comedy role of the country woman's husband. It is the first comedy in which Mr. Bosworth has appeared since the formation of his own company; and he achieves in it a superb success.

BELASCO PRODUCTION MEETS WITH APPROVAL

Plot of His Newest Production "Marie-Odile" Causes Sensation on New York Stage.

(By Beau Rialto)

New York, Jan. 30.—David Belasco's newest production—"Marie-Odile"—which had its premiere in Washington, has stirred theatrical circles as they haven't been stirred in some time. With Frances Starr in the leading role, the play is well acted and as it is a Belasco production—and well staged. The sensation that it has caused is due entirely to its plot.

Miss Starr is seen as one of the novices in a convent in Alsace. The period of the play is the time of the Franco-Prussian war. The novice that Miss Starr portrays has never seen a man. She believes that children are brought into the world by angels.

German Uhlans make their appearance on the scene. One of them single out the novice and betrays her. Still innocent of any great wrong being done, the girl returns to the convent with her babe. She believes that a kind Providence has allowed her to have the child.

The initial performance of "Marie Odile" left the capital gasping from reports received here. No detail of the play had been allowed to leak out by the producer until it had its premiere.

New York's leading dancers are not conning their money-making activities to the stage. With hardly an exception all of the exponents of modern dancing are appearing at attractions at cafés—either their own or as salaried performers.

Joan Sawyer, who takes a whirl at vaudeville every little while, has the popular Persian Garden, where she dances daily. George Harcourt at present, is her partner and she has been introducing many new evolutions of her own creation.

Chez Maurice, at Fifteen street and Broadway, is another high class restaurant and Florence Walton, two of the most popular dancers ever in New York, appear there daily on all of the modern steps.

"Castles in the Air" is still another well patronized dining place. As the name suggests, the Castles Vernon and wife appear there daily.

After their performance at the Winter Garden, where they are appearing in "Watch Your Step," the hustle to "Castles in the Air" atop the 44th street theater and there they dance for the amusement of early morning diners.

Theatergoers the country over will mourn the death of George B. Frothingham better known as Friar Tuck, the character he portrayed so many times in "Robin Hood." He died recently at Burlington, Vt., of heart disease. He was 75 years old.

Frothingham devoted almost three-fourths of his entire stage career to playing Friar Tuck. It was his boast that he knew every wink, blink and song of every character in "Robin Hood." His last appearance in New York was in 1914 when "Robin Hood" was revived at the New Amsterdam theater.

"Dancing Around" ends its run at the Winter Garden in a very few nights. Its performance on February 6 is expected to be its last. Led by Al Jolson, the company will start on a tour to the Pacific Coast.

John Drew is to appear in a revival of "Rosemary" next fall at the Empire theatre. This has been decided upon by the star and Charles Frohman. There has been an insistent demand for Drew to play in "Rosemary." He was unable to do so before the Empire closed the present season, so it was decided to have the revival next fall prior to the opening of the regular season.

Arthur Hammerstein helped the "Hotel de Gink" get a piano by giving its organizer and helped as "King of the Hoboes" a week's engagement. With his salary Davis bought a piano for his hostelry.

HOW TO CURE A LA GRIPPE COUGH

"Coughs that hang on" demand treatment. Stop and think. Reason and common sense tell you that it is folly to "grin and bear it." Those racking la grippe coughs that wrench the body and cause soreness and pains in the lungs yield more quickly to Feely's Honey and Tar than any other treatment. Forty year record of success proves this. For colds, colds, croup, and other distressing ailments of the throat, chest, lungs, larynx, bronchial tubes, you can find nothing that will compare with this reliable remedy—Sold by W. T. Sherer, Druggist.

DON'T HAVE A Sore Throat!

"No one need have a sore throat, if they use the Benetol as directed," writes Oscar F. G. Davis, famous newspaper man and originator of the first dietary elections. "There are five 'people' in the family; everyone has some throat trouble at quite a frequency every winter. For the three years we have had Benetol in the house, we have been absolutely free from one case. I absolutely assert that no one need have a sore throat. Benetol prevents it. Send for sample from your nearest druggist or send direct, enclosing 25c, stamps or coin, to Benetol Company, Minneapolis, Minn."

THE MASTER KEY

By John Fleming Wilson

BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT FOR THIS PAPER MADE WITH THE UNIVERSAL FILM MANUFACTURING CO.
(Copyright, 1914, by John Fleming Wilson.)

Jean Darnell received Drake coolly and listened to Wilkerson's explanation of his new scheme without a word.

Her stormy eyes boded no good to some one, and Wilkerson feared she would abandon him.

But there was the tenacity of a tiger in her passions, and now she could not give up her sweet revenge nor forego the thought of possessing the wealth which had once been Tom Gallon's and which he had tried to conceal.

She agreed to go, and they decided to leave by train that evening, thus being in San Francisco in time to meet the steamer and watch for Dorr's next movement.

Two days later Everett again met John and Ruth in the hotel in San Francisco.

John's news was that the Hindu they sought had undoubtedly been on the Halcyon and that John had bought a steerage passage for Bombay.

"You ought to get the plans before you get to India," Everett said earnestly. "You'll find yourself in a strange land, where it will be like looking for a needle in a haystack to get hold of your man."

Dorr acknowledged this and outlined his tentative plan of getting hold of the idol during the passage.

"After all, we don't want the idol. I shall try to persuade the man of this and get him to let me have the papers concealed in it."

At this moment Sir Donald Faversham was announced.

The entrance of the Englishman who had made himself so attentive to Ruth at the southern hotel awakened little enthusiasm in either Dorr or Everett, but for Ruth's sake they played the civil part.

She, on the other hand, received Sir Donald with every evidence of lively pleasure.

"We are this minute talking of going over to India, where you lived so long," she told him after the first greetings. "And you are just the man to tell us all about it."

"Going to India!" ejaculated the baronet. "My word!"

"Yes," she proceeded. "We are after a Hindu and his idol."

At this point John laughingly came to the rescue and briefly explained the object of their quest.

Sir Donald listened quietly, occasionally glancing at Ruth, whose beauty was enhanced by pretty excitement.

At the conclusion of the tale he nursed the end of his stick awhile in very apparent perplexity.

"You know, my dear fellow," he said, addressing John, "that India is a large country filled with millions of different races. Even granting that this man is a Hindu and that your surmise about the idol is correct, I don't see how you are going to accomplish anything."

"That is just where you can help us!" said Ruth impulsively.

For the instant Sir Donald actually blushed with embarrassment.

Then he gathered himself together and went into details of what they must expect and the difficulties they must encounter.

She was not in love, but she was ready to be. The experienced man beside her surmised this. His own heart was beating a new tune. He had lived much, and women had not been aloof from his life.

But this fair, poised, inexperienced, yet self contained girl wakened in him a deeper feeling than he cared to confess.

To be sure, he had John Dorr to contend with. Faversham did not underestimate him as a possible rival when he allowed himself to go so far as contemplating marriage with Ruth.

He liked the young American, and none knew better than he the effect that constant association with Dorr must have upon a young and very impressionable girl. John's own sentiments were unmistakable—he was deeply in love.

From Hongkong they transshipped to a P. & O. steamer for Bombay, and under Sir Donald's expert guidance they shortly found themselves in India and installed in a very good hotel.

"We must wait here till I discover through natives just where that fellow is bound for."

"Why not simply trace him?" demanded Dorr, impatient to be about his errand.

Entirely disarmed, John Dorr had

"That would be out of the question," Faversham explained. "In the first place, you don't understand any native tongue, and in the second place the British government doesn't look with favor on strange and unattached Europeans stumbling about among the natives."

"If you leave it to me I think I not only can ascertain the exact place where this fellow comes from, but the temple where the idol belongs."

Several days passed, during which Sir Donald was busy among old acquaintances, leaving John and Ruth to their own devices.

They occupied their time in sightseeing. At last Faversham came into dinner one evening with a smile on his face.

"I've found your man and learned something of the history of the image," he said.

"And we can get it back?" Ruth inquired promptly.

Sir Donald shook his head gently.

"Not so fast, young lady!"

"But that is what we came for," she went on.

"The fact of the matter is this," said the baronet—"that image was stolen away from his poor old father and remained in a far country for years and years. But after years and years he came back to his poor old father, and his poor old father said unto his servants, 'Bring forth the fatted calf which has been kept for my son these years and years.' An old farmer in the audience could contain himself no longer. 'Na, na, me make. It wud has been an awld coo by that time,' he exclaimed.

"That will be just our chance," said John. "In the crowds we ought to be safe."

Faversham tried to convince him that this was not so, but Dorr insisted so strongly that the Englishman yielded to his better judgment.

"I'll try to get you within sight of the idol anyway," he consented. "But I must insist that you obey my instructions implicitly. Otherwise we shall all get into trouble and you will eventually kill any chance you may have of attaining your purpose."

The result of this was that Ruth late that night was wakened by Sir Donald's rapping on her door.

When she had flung on some clothes and opened her door, she saw from his manner and his disheveled dress that all had not gone well.

the river."

Faversham wasted no time in looking up certain people he knew among the natives and was in a position to inform them that he had not only discovered the temple, but that he had learned that the idol had been recovered and would be restored to its proper shrine with due ceremony and great festivity.

"That will be just our chance," said John. "In the crowds we ought to be safe."

Faversham tried to convince him that this was not so, but Dorr insisted so strongly that the Englishman yielded to his better judgment.

"I'll try to get you within sight of the idol anyway," he consented. "But I must insist that you obey my instructions implicitly. Otherwise we shall all get into trouble and you will eventually kill any chance you may have of attaining your purpose."

The result of this was that Ruth late that night was wakened by Sir Donald's rapping on her door.

When she had flung on some clothes and opened her door, she saw from his manner and his disheveled dress that all had not gone well.

CLAIMS SMALL VOTE IS DUE TO PRIMARY

CORRESPONDENT MAKES CONTENTION COMMENTING ON AMENDMENT TO PRIMARY LAW.

TERM "TORY" MISUSED

Newspapers are Careless in Applying Epithet Which Carries a Malevolent Inference.

(By Ellis B. Usber.)

Milwaukee, Jan. 30.—Bills are being talked about in Madison to amend the primary election law, and Milwaukee officials are urging important changes. It is likely to be one of the important questions of the year. It is natural that men who have been advocates of this law should be slow to admit its failure. It is so essential to remember that a large majority of the voters know no other system. They have grown up under this one. It will be of the utmost importance for the advocates of radical changes in the law to ground their objections to it in terms that are more forcible. There is no need of going back to ancient history for such facts. Perhaps one of the most striking is in the figures of the last election. While in the country at large the total vote of 1914 is larger than that of the presidential election of 1912 by 125,000, or a very unusual condition. In this case it is off 68,000, or 17%. This falling off was due to a small total vote in 1913 and of a field of candidates in 1914, both in the primary and at the general election, unexampled in Wisconsin politics. There were about 3500 candidates in the primary, and nearly as many on election day, reckoning all parties and independent candidates, from county to United States senator. The reasonable expectation would be that so many office seekers and their friends, each ought to have had at least five friends and relatives, would have increased the vote, but energy evaporated somewhere before the polling place was reached.

Influence of Urban Centers.

There is another significant fact that is worthy of candid attention and analysis. From the close of William H. Smith's term as governor in 1878, to the election of George McGovern, the state had but one governor from Milwaukee. George W. Peck, and the candidates of all parties were generally from the smaller cities of the state. Rush, Upton, Hoard, and Scoville, are names that illustrate the point. Since 1906, Madison and Milwaukee have had the government. At the time, and La Follette and Stephensons combination, once harmonious, had held both United States senatorships since 1906. The new senator, Mr. Huston, comes from a small city, but any careful study of Wisconsin election results since 1906, when the primary went into action, will show the predominant influence of urban population in state government. It was notable, too, in last year's campaign, that success was made easy for Mr. Phillips and Mr. Huston by many divisions among their opponents. It was pointed out long ago that success would be possible under the system for the candidate who could safely divide the strength opposed to him. Only has charged Mr. Phillips or Mr. Huston with doing this, or promoting it, but the results of last year's election demonstrate that it was one of the possibilities of the primary system. These are points that have not been emphasized but a careful review of the returns may prove very illuminating to the legislature.

No Argument in Epithets.

It is still fashionable for certain papers, like that edited by Victor Berger, from which a quotation was made recently, to refer to Governor Phillips, and to those who support him, as "Tories." The word is used to be lightly used. Except when applied in loathing or with deliberate malice, it could fit no American citizen. All Americans are supposed to know what the term really means, in this country, I run across a contemporary writer of the position of the other day, which I venture to reproduce. A writer in the Worcester, Massachusetts, Spy, in 1875, thus defines a "Tory and Toryism":

"The word means one who is a maintainer of the internal doctrine of arbitrary power, the indefensible right on the part of the sovereign, or of passive obedience and non-resistance on the part of the subject. The King maintains the king holds his crown by none but God, while the people were made entirely for him, and that he has a right to dispose of their fortunes, lives, and liberty, defiance of his coronation oath, and the eternal laws of reason, without the subject having any right to demand redress of grievances or their bodies denied to seek it for them selves."

It is not really intended, I fancy, even by Victor Berger, to this stigmatize Governor Phillips and his friends as traitors to American ideals, but that's what the word "Tory" means. Epithets are not good arguments.

Pulling for the Erie.

(Advertisement) Next week, beginning Monday, the traffic men of the Erie Railroad will gather in New York from all parts of the United States and Canada. You know the Erie's offices in Winona, Seattle, San Francisco, and all along the way. The Wisconsin field will be represented by General Agent Harvey D. Pheatt, his assistant, W. J.

CASCARETS FOR BOWELS, STOMACH, HEADACHE, COLDS

CLEAN YOUR LIVER AND CONSTIPATED BOWELS TONIGHT AND FEEL FINE.

Get a 10c box now. Are you keeping your liver, stomach and bowels clean, pure and fresh with Cascarets—or merely forcing a passage-way every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil? This is important.

Cascarets immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested food and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system the constipated waste matter and poison in the bowels.

No odds how sick, headache, bilious and constipated you feel. A Cascaret tonight will straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep. A 10-cent box from your druggist will keep your head clear, stomach sweet and your liver and bowels regular for months. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a gentle cleaning too.

Fitzgerald and H. S. Waltermire, of the passenger department, all of this city. They left for the east today. When it comes to comparing notes, Mr. Fitzgerald has a good record, one, I imagine, that will not be improved upon, if it can be generalized, for despite the unsettled conditions of business in 1914, the Erie made a gain in this field for every month in the year. I hope the boys will do as well, but it will be hard to beat that showing. This field has the president's kindly interest, and I am sure the showing will please him, and it ought to, for he is making the Erie a reputation for doing things. The 58 roads, New York and the skill of the Milwaukee agency in the export business are the kind of service that is pulling hero, for the Erie. Fifty car loads of automobile trucks are on the way east now, by this road.

Schools for Millionaires.

Just now, when questions of education are being raised among our statesmen in Madison, I have been especially impressed with the broad opportunities offered by our schools to our young men and maidens, as can go east to "Finish off." That is done especially well in certain private schools that are upholstered and decorated especially for the sons and daughters of our millionaires. A private letter from a bright pupil at a young ladies school of this sort in an eastern metropolis sets this style of modern education in quite the correct perspective. It says:

"As far as us, pursuant to our policy of never letting our lessons interfere with our regular school work, we went one night to Billy Burke, another to Pavlova, a third to a concert, and we have 'Billy' Sunday in prospect for an early Sabbath evening. But with the exception of these infrequent interruptions of routine, our dull life drags weary through bare hallways, lined with window seats, through cushioned libraries, and simple gowns, all emphasized with primeval and antediluvian calm. We don't like to pay as little as $1500 for our school year expenses, so try to help out our parents, suffering under an intolerable burden of surplus cash by taking Spanish at $300, and by hiring 'autos' to visit the parks, or a stone's throw away. Oh, my friend, do you remember the Little Brownie boys that died of being gilded?"

This is, probably, somewhat in the superlative, as most things are in this day, but it has a genuine flavor of one of American life today, a life that is exotic, and unhealthy in this soil.

Fire-Trap Gymnasium.
After having seen the Chicago-Wisconsin basketball game last Saturday, three impressions remain in my mind. The first is the disgraceful fire trap called the University Gymnasium. The second is that Wisconsin has still to be reckoned with in the race for the Conference title; and the last that Smith, of Wisconsin, is a guard of extraordinary ability.

But the fire trap impression is strongest. I judged there were fully two hundred people in and on the second floor of the building. There was but one exit. That was at the front of the building and consisted of double set of narrow doors, which was reached after a double turn on an inside stone stairway. I was told there were no exits save the fire ones. Indeed, I could discover no others. With a panic-stricken mob hustling one, there would be no chance to discover any exits save the front one, even if there are any.

Here's a good example of University efficiency and Wisconsin legislation. The idea of the state house dome, other states have legislated against allowing large assemblies on second floors, but in almost any building, anywhere you go, convenient exits are to be found. But a fire, or even a panic in the gymnasium of our progressive State University, would have an horrible outcome, like the trooq fire. We talk much of law and regulation. Such a building would be condemned easily. Madison officials or citizens did their duty, to say nothing of the University authorities.

CRIPPLED SOLDIER ASKS EMPEROR JOSEPH TO GIVE ORDERS FOR HIS DEATH

(Correspondence Associated Press.) Venecia, Jan. 30.—The reason Emperor Francis Joseph has caused his daily visits to the Vienna military hospitals is explained by a correspondent of a Venice newspaper who quoted a surgeon's story of the Emperor's last days.

"The Emperor arrived in our ward late in the afternoon, and approached a wounded soldier who had lost both legs and one arm through amputations made necessary by shell wounds. The soldier recognized the aged Emperor, and asked to speak with him. 'I have a request to make of your Majesty, who is all-powerful,' said the soldier.

"Anything I can do for you I will gladly do," responded the Emperor.

"Then give them orders to kill me, and put me out of my misery," said the man.

The Emperor who is very tender-hearted, turned pale, and grasped the hand of an orderly for support. He had to be helped out of the word, and since then his Majesty has not been seen in any of the military hospitals,

Wolves Alarm Rock Prairie Farmers

TWO TIMBER WOLVES KILLED THIS WEEK BY WILL BENNETT AND PAUL MILLER OF LIMA.

Bold wild wolves have been alarming farmers on Rock Prairie for several weeks as the beasts are so ravenous that they attack sheep even in the day time. Will Bennett and Paul Miller of Lima had a wolf hunt early in the week and with the aid of hounds routed out a pack of three timber wolves. They succeeded in killing two and wounding a third. The accompanying photograph shows the two frightened animals which are being held upright showing their unusual size. The one at the right, old timers say, is the largest ever seen in this part of the state.

SIDE LIGHTS on THE CIRCUS BUSINESS

By D. W. WATT

Knowing that McIntyre and Heath of "Ham Tree" fame who showed here at the Myers Opera House Monday evening, commenced their career in the business with the circus, it was not long after their arrival at the hotel until I had them both in a corner asking them all kinds of foolish questions as to their start in the business.

James McIntyre told me that he practically started in the business from the Myers House corner in 1869.

"I was then quite a boy," he said, "and came here to join Pard Older, who formerly lived in Janesville, but was then proprietor of the Older show which winter quarters were at Independence, Iowa. As far as I know, he was in Kenosha, Wis., where some of my people still live. I came by way of Janesville on my way to Independence. That was in the early days of wagon show business, and I clowned a little, did a black face turn in the concert and made myself generally useful around the show.

Frank G. Stevens of this city, was the manager and Del Comstock, also of Janesville, was the ticket agent and treasurer. The show went south in the fall and finally drifted into the yellow fever district where it was finally quarantined, and went to the wall. It was there that Mr. Comstock, the treasurer, died with the dreaded disease, adult was then Tom Heath, my partner, whose home was in Philadelphia, joined me or joined him and we have been together ever since."

As these gentlemen are entirely the tired kind, and interviewed in nearly every city in which they show, it was not so easy a matter to get them to talk very much for themselves.

The "Ham Tree" orchard of McIntyre and Heath has been one of the big successes of the country, and has made them famous in every city in the world.

I also had a long visit with Edward S. Holder, who has traveled many miles in every civilized country of the world, and put out more great fortunes of the animal kind than any other man in the business.

He said: "Dave, I want you to come up in the Opera House to my dressing room. I want to show you my scrap book covering several years of my travels and pictures I have had taken of my acts in the different countries."

Ed. Holder for nine years was connected with the old John Robinson Show of Cincinnati, and later furnished tresses on four of the big feature acts with the Barnum show on their trip through Europe. Later he made a trip of three years through Japan and China with the D. M. Bristol Show, and was in China at the time of the Boxer uprising, at which time they made a fast getaway out of the country.

Through this country Ed. took ten trained razor-backed hogs, eight head of big horned steers, and six high school horses, and these were the great features of the show.

With the McIntyre and Heath Show, Ed was the owner and trainer

WARSAW IS STRATEGIC POINT IN EAST BORDER

FALL WOULD BE SERIOUS FOR RUSSIA AND DECISIVE VICTORY FOR GERMANY.

BIG MILITARY CENTER

Arrival of Siege Guns Will Determine Fate of City Believes Germans. —Russians Holding Off Teutons.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE) (By Count Czerning.)

Former Captain of the Austrian Army.

New York, Jan. 29.—Just what is the importance of Warsaw in the European war? This question has been widely asked.

According to the extent of the success of the Austro-German troops in carrying the war further into Russian Poland, the fortresses on the Vistula—of which Warsaw is the strongest—become more and more crucially important. At the present time the river is the basis and the main point of support for the Russian army. From the main depots at Warsaw, Novgorodsk and Warsaw—fresh supplies are sent to the troops. Warsaw is the junction of the few railroads that run from the interior. Its fall would be a catastrophe for Russia and probably a decisive victory for Germany.

At Strategic Center.

Warsaw is the richest city in Russian Poland and the most politically important. The majority of the inhabitants are Poles, who have always hated Russians. Of recent years Russia has endeavored to gain their sympathy by political promises, such as autonomy. But, knowing the character of Russian promises, the dream of every Pole is still a free kingdom as formerly. Often promises made by the Poles were never carried out.

The military importance of Warsaw was early recognized. During the reign of the Polish kings the first stronghold was built. It was only in 1832 that the building of the present fortress was started. First there was erected the so-called "Alexander citadelle," containing four fronts and six advance forts, adapted also for guns.

These were considered sufficient until in that year was begun the "Noyau," with five main and three smaller forts, each containing two ramarries, the upper for artillery, the lower for infantry. In front of the whole fortress today lies belt of small forts, four kilometers apart, protecting the town in a circle of fifty kilometers.

Warsaw is divided by the Vistula in two parts, which are connected by two iron bridges—one for traffic, the other a double bridge, the top for a railroad, the bottom a highway. This is also the junction of three double track railroads from the interior.

From here two double tracks run westward, one via Slawa to Prussia, the other via Skiernevitz to Cracow. In the center of the city are situated large military depots.

When Austin "joined out" with the Gentry Brothers' show No. 1, he had never seen Henry Gentry, founder of the shows. Henry Gentry was to train, got him up town, and then confided to him that only some canvas men wear high hats around the show. Austin registered at one of the hotels and almost instantly began regaling the guests with wonderful stories about the Gentry Brothers.

Among the most quiet and yet most interested men was Henry Gentry. He says that Austin told him more about himself than he had ever known before. Austin told him what a philanthropist Henry Gentry was. Then he regaled him with stories about how Henry Gentry beat Rockville to the university building stunt, and he added that the best schools in Europe and America were the ones at which Gentry educated his children. Incidentally, Henry Gentry built hospitals and universities, libraries, etc.

When Austin was through, Mr. Gentry suggested that he was a good talker and should be the press agent for the show.

"Gee, I would like to have that job," said Austin.

"You have it, young man," replied H. B. Gentry, "I am the founder of the shows. Mr. Henry B. Gentry. And Austin has been with him ever since."

WARSAW IS STRATEGIC POINT IN EAST BORDER

FALL WOULD BE SERIOUS FOR RUSSIA AND DECISIVE VICTORY FOR GERMANY.

BIG MILITARY CENTER

Arrival of Siege Guns Will Determine Fate of City Believes Germans. —Russians Holding Off Teutons.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE) (By Count Czerning.)

Former Captain of the Austrian Army.

New York, Jan. 29.—Just what is the importance of Warsaw in the European war? This question has been widely asked.

According to the extent of the success of the Austro-German troops in carrying the war further into Russian Poland, the fortresses on the Vistula—which of which Warsaw is the strongest—become more and more crucially important.

At the present time the river is the basis and the main point of support for the Russian army. From the main depots at Warsaw, Novgorodsk and Warsaw—fresh supplies are sent to the troops. Warsaw is the junction of the few railroads that run from the interior. Its fall would be a catastrophe for Russia and probably a decisive victory for Germany.

At Strategic Center.

Warsaw is the richest city in Russian Poland and the most politically important. The majority of the inhabitants are Poles, who have always hated Russians. Of recent years Russia has endeavored to gain their sympathy by political promises, such as autonomy. But, knowing the character of Russian promises, the dream of every Pole is still a free kingdom as formerly. Often promises made by the Poles were never carried out.

The military importance of Warsaw was early recognized. During the reign of the Polish kings the first stronghold was built. It was only in 1832 that the building of the present fortress was started. First there was erected the so-called "Alexander citadelle," containing four fronts and six advance forts, adapted also for guns.

These were considered sufficient until in that year was begun the "Noyau," with five main and three smaller forts, each containing two ramarries, the upper for artillery, the lower for infantry. In front of the whole fortress today lies belt of small forts, four kilometers apart, protecting the town in a circle of fifty kilometers.

Warsaw is divided by the Vistula in two parts, which are connected by two iron bridges—one for traffic, the other a double bridge, the top for a railroad, the bottom a highway. This is also the junction of three double track railroads from the interior.

From here two double tracks run westward, one via Slawa to Prussia, the other via Skiernevitz to Cracow. In the center of the city are situated large military depots.

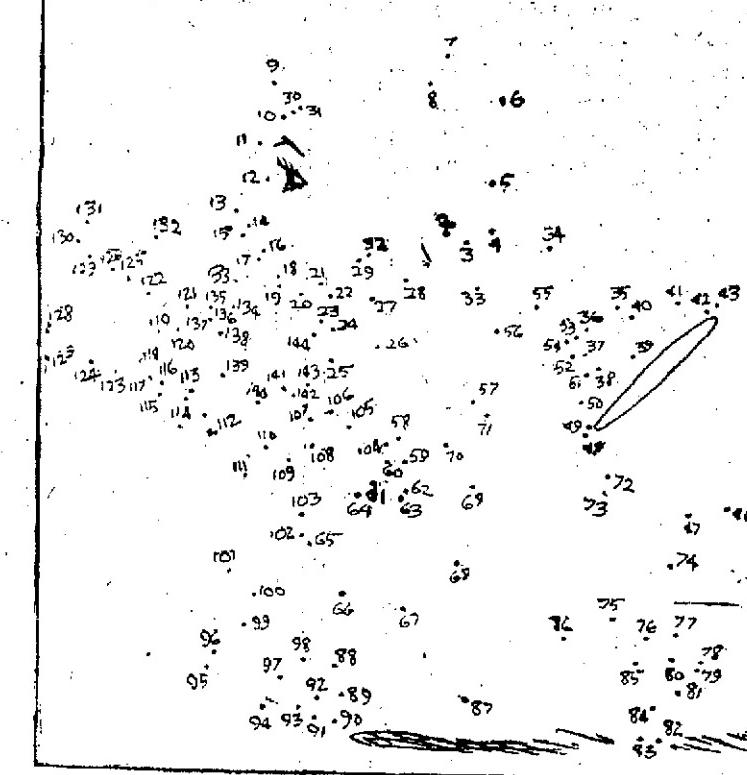

When Austin "joined out" with the Gentry Brothers' show No. 1, he had never seen Henry Gentry, founder of the shows. Henry Gentry was to train, got him up town, and then confided to him that only some canvas men wear high hats around the show. Austin registered at one of the hotels and almost instantly began regaling the guests with wonderful stories about the Gentry Brothers.

Among the most quiet and yet most interested men was Henry Gentry. He says that Austin told him more about himself than he had ever known before. Austin told him what a philanthropist Henry Gentry was. Then he regaled him with stories about how Henry Gentry beat Rockville to the university building stunt, and he added that the best schools in Europe and America were the ones at which Gentry educated his children. Incidentally, Henry Gentry built hospitals and universities, libraries, etc.

When Austin was through, Mr. Gentry suggested that he was a good talker and should be the press agent for the show.

"Gee, I would like to have that job," said Austin.

"You have it, young man," replied H. B. Gentry, "I am the founder of the shows. Mr. Henry B. Gentry. And Austin has been with him ever since."

Claim Narrow Wagon Tires Do Much Damage to Highways

The roads leading to the Russian fortress are in bad condition. However, the severe cold of winter turns the thick mud into a hard frozen crust, making them more passable.

BIG GUNS SEAL FATE.

The German 42 centimeter siege guns are so heavy that they can be transported only by train. A platform of concrete must be made for the train to rest on before they are ready for firing. Even though brought by trained men of the railroad regiment their transportation to the vicinity of Warsaw would take at least three days. The actual dimensions of these guns are not yet known. The difficult transport of these cumbersome vehicles cut into the surfacing of the roads and macadam roads and do considerable damage. Several fine stretches of highway in the town of Warsaw were recently ruined last year due entirely to the hauling of heavy loads of milk on these old-style wagons. In other localities damage was done of the same nature.

What is needed evidently is some sort of law or regulation which will encourage farmers to use broad tires.

The mortars are so light that they can be transported by hundred horsepower motors over almost any street in a day can be carried from fifteen to twenty miles.

Consequently the object of the Russian army is to keep the enemy as far as possible from the gates of Warsaw. They know exactly the fate of the town after the arrival of these guns.

From Napoleon's winter campaign, a hundred years ago, the general staff learned the effect of the war in modern fortresses was considered bombproof, but after the conquest of Namur, Marne, Antwerp and other forts it is plainly evident that even concrete walls cannot withstand the fire of the new "big aunts from Eisen." The Belgian general staff considered Antwerp strong enough to withstand a year's siege, but it took only twelve days to capture the town. It is now only a question as to how long it will take to bring the siege guns before the walls of Warsaw, as the whole flock is headed for destruction at the top of the cliff, he can't get out unless the whole flock changes its course.

We need somebody to head us off. Now, I'm opposed as a general thing to the taxing of anything produced by

KAISER ORDERS PLAIN RATIONS FOR ARMY; APPLIES RULE TO SELF

In the commissary department of the German army.

The kaiser recently issued an order that the same bread which was eaten by his men in the field should also be served at his own table. It is the belief of the kaiser that in order for his men to keep rugged and well they should have the plainest rations and he extends this rule to apply to himself and the men on his staff. Some members of the commissary department are here seen distributing a day's rations in bread, coffee, sugar and vegetables.

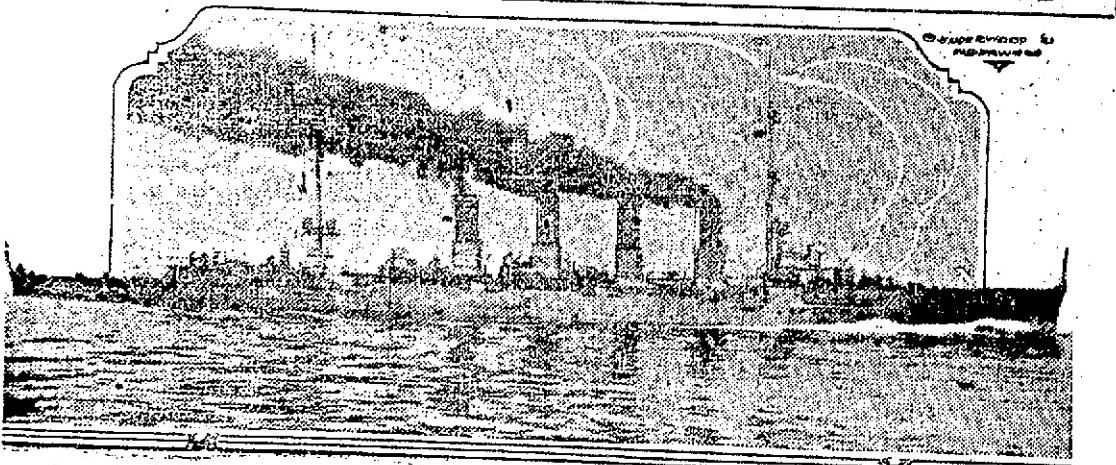

WILHELMINA SAILING WITH FOOD FOR GERMANS RISKS SEIZURE

The Wilhelmmina leaving New York.

The steamer Wilhelmmina, flying the American flag, is now on its way to Hamburg with a cargo of provisions consigned to an agent of a St. Louis commission house in Germany. She passed two British men-of-war outside New York city without molestation. It is believed, however, that she will be seized, as soon as she attempts to enter a German port. In case this is done the English will offer to pay the full value of the cargo.

CARPATHIANS PROVE FRIEND TO HUNGARY

In Addition to Forming a Barrier Against Invading Russians They Ward Off Biting Winter Winds.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Society today tells something of the Carpathian Mountains and their bearing on the European situation and upon Central climatic conditions.

"The Carpathians are among the best friends which Hungary has. They stretch in a wide arc around the northern plain of the Magyar, from Presburg, on the Danube, near Vienna, to Orsova, on the Danube, across from Roumania. Thus, they form nearly the entire boundary of Hungary east and north of the Danube, a line of about 800 miles in length. The hollow of this arc, as well as its most favorable approach, lies toward Hungary. Troops pressing forward along this whole convex mountain sweep, are facing the least favorable passes, and are operating with the least shelter from the biting winter winds.

"Besides having served the peoples who have lived in the Hungarian plain long and faithfully as a first-line defense against the wrath of their neighbors in the north and east, the Carpathians have been just as partisan for the southern plain in times of peace. They shut out the stinging bleak winds which snap across the Steppes wastes direct from the frosty ice fields of the north. While the Carpathian range is of low average height and has no great peaks, its walls, nevertheless, are lofty enough to catch the Russian ice-winds and blizzards, and to deflect them away from Hungary. Again, in summer, the warm southern breezes are caught and broken on the Hungarian hillsides, which thus prevent them from reaching Galicia.

"The Carpathians are the eastern mountain system of Europe, and, like, one of its parts of most historic importance. They are steep and craggy in their northern exposures, while toward the south they fall away in lesser mountain groups and broken, sloping plateaus. With the exception of parts of the eastern ramifications which belong to Roumania, this range lies wholly within Austro-Hungarian territory. Its total area is 72,600 square miles.

"The Carpathians attain the greatest height in the Hohe Tatra group, near the center of the range and just east and south of Cracow, the chief city of Austrian Galicia. The system also has its greatest width here. Throughout the chain the passes over the mountains vary from 7 to 230 miles. The heights of the peaks in the Hohe Tatra group are 8,000 feet and more. Gerlachofen peak, the highest one in the entire system, reaches 8,737 feet above the sea level. Thus, the Carpathian range has no mountain formations to compare with the more majestic Alpine groups or with those of our own Rockies. There are innumerable peaks through this Hungarian line of defense, however, which vary from 5,000 to 7,000 feet in height, and these walls, together with the involved character of most of the passes, have made the Carpathians a very effective barrier against northern invaders.

"Inhabitants Miserably Poor. "These mountains separate Hungary, beginning on the west, from the Austrian provinces of Moravia, Silesia, Galicia, Bukowina, Moldavia and the Kingdom of Roumania. Some of the most miserably poor white people in the world live along this range and upon its forest-covered slopes. They are mostly Slavs, Polish Slavs, upon the bleak, more abrupt northern exposures, while the dwellers of Slovakia land, a people almost become subject to the Magyar, live upon the southern mountains.

"The Carpathian mountains are rich in metallic ores than any other mountain groups in Europe. Large quantities of gold, silver, copper, iron, lead, coal, petroleum, salt, zinc and other minerals are mined there, and many of the wilder parts of the system have not yet been thoroughly prospected. There are a number of thermal and mineral springs in the mountains which are well-known as health resorts.

"Among the higher convolutions of the Carpathians, a great number of beautiful lakes have been discovered, which the Hungarians have named the 'eyes of the sea.' The irregularity of cliff and gorge, and the beauty of these deep, highland lakes, are the chief scenic advantages of the Carpathians. There are no glaciers, no patches of perennial snow in the system. However, many of the higher peaks are great ugly masses of bald rock and rock erosion."

SNOW FALL IN NORWAY IS DANGEROUSLY HEAVY TO TELEPHONE LINES

(Correspondence Associated Press.) Christiania, Jan. 30.—The snow fall in Norway this year is the heaviest in fifteen years, and has caused considerable damage in breaking down trees and telephone and telegraph wires and poles. The temperature has been only a few degrees below freezing, and the snow has afforded fine sport. The King, Queen and Crown Prince have gone to their cottage in the hills near Christiania to enjoy skating, at which they are all experts. A number of English officers are in the health resorts in the mountains, recuperating from wounds. Skiing has brought a number of tourists to Norway, although not many compared with past years.

MANY THEOLOGICAL STUDENTS FIGHTING IN GERMAN ARMY

(Correspondence of Associated Press) Berlin, Jan. 30.—There are a considerable number of German pastors and theological students serving in the armies at the front, serving in the armies at the front, as evidenced by figures made public here. In the kingdom of Wittenberg 168 pastors have been called to arms, and 90 are already in the fighting lines. Of the 170 divinity students at the university of Tuebingen 150 entered the army.

"In the army of the Argonne there is one entire company composed of theologians. All the German universities which possess theological departments report large numbers of enlistments from this class of students. Very few of them, it is stated, care to serve as officers but prefer to serve in the ranks, where it is believed their influence on the ordinary soldiers will have a great effect.

EXPECT NO ACTION WILL BE TAKEN ON CONSTRUCTION OF CHANNEL TUNNEL NOW

(Correspondence Associated Press.) London, Jan. 30.—Notwithstanding the war, the group of enthusiasts who for years have advocated the construction of a tunnel under the English Channel between France and England have lost none of their ardor for the enterprise. On the contrary, they are pushing the scheme with more than usual vigor, pointing out that were the tunnel in operation at present it would be of inestimable advantage to England in rushing troops to France.

"England's Committee on Imperial Defense had the tunnel project before it when war broke out. War came before this committee had time to report its findings to Parliament, and it is not likely therefore that any action will be taken until peace is declared. Backers of the project insist, however, that they are ready to begin work immediately.

BRITISH AND TURKS ARE FIGHTING NEAR THE GARDEN OF EDEN

(Correspondence Associated Press.) London, Jan. 30.—"We are here very near Adam and Eve's abode, the Garden of Eden," writes a lance corporal with the British forces fighting the Turks in the country back of the Persian gulf.

"It is very hot, and the country is no place for a white man. We live on bread, tea and dates. The greatest hardship is the scarcity of water. I have not had a shave or a wash for seventeen days.

"We captured two forts and a telegraph office yesterday without the loss of a man. The Turks lost forty. Some of the methods of the Turks in action are curious. Their favorite trick of theirs is to fall down in close action as if dead, and then, after the line of British has passed them, they get up again and fire at them from behind.

"While retreating, the Turks frequently discard numerous articles of clothing, lest they should impede their flight. Before their retreat has lasted long, they have on nothing but their shirts and ammunition belts. No matter how hot the fighting is, one cannot refrain from laughing at the spectacle of several hundred men running at top speed with their long shirts flapping around their bare legs.

CHEMICAL BLONDE HORSES NOT WANTED BY BRITISH FOR MILITARY PURPOSES

(Correspondence Associated Press.) London, Jan. 30.—Chemical blonde horses are not wanted in the British army. It was thought at first that white horses could be utilized on the front by dying them a khaki blonde. The results have been far from satisfactory. A battery of 24 white horses were treated to a coat of yellow lye, and sent on duty for ten days in rough weather. On their return, they were all a better green. "No dye has yet been discovered that will hold its color on a horse that is being worked."

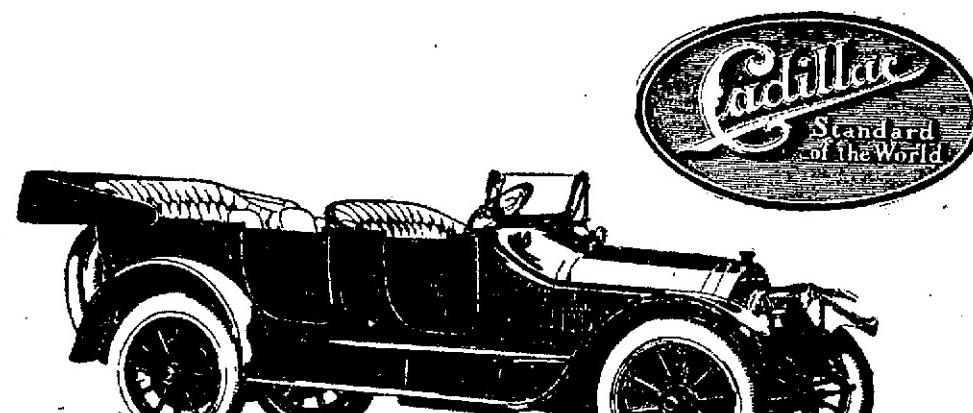

Physicians in Germany. Germany averages one practicing physician for each 2,000 inhabitants, the proportion being higher in some of the cities and lower in the rural districts.

ABE MARTIN

Miss Fawn Lippincott has returned from a delightful visit to Stop 15. She says the place is growing wonderfully, and supports, besides a grain elevator and a Majestic Theatre, some twenty or thirty English sparrows. It pays to be good, but nobody ever got rich at it.

KEEPING IN GOOD CONDITION Many people suffer from indigestion and constipation and do not know it. A feeling of dullness and languidness, bitter taste in the mouth, headache, bilious fever—most of those conditions when you "are not sick, but don't feel right"—can be traced to sluggish bowels and torpid liver. Foley Cathartic Tablets cleanse the system, arouse the liver, banish indigestion and make you feel good all over—light, energetic and active. Sold by W. T. Scherer, druggist.
